

CAI Long Island Chapter Meeting

with an educational presentation

Delinquency & Foreclosure Update

Residents who do not pay their dues and assessments are not cheating some faceless entity, but their neighbors and community. That isn't fair to those who do meet their responsibilities. When some homeowners are delinquent, either their neighbors must make up the difference or services and amenities must be curtailed. That affects everyone in the community, perhaps even leading to a decline in property values.

Procedures for collection differ from one community association to the next depending on established procedures, governing documents, and local and state statutes. Please join us as our team of legal experts discuss the following:

- Fiduciary Duty of Boards in setting policies, pursuing collection and various methods of collection.
- Collection Process money judgments and non-judicial options.
- Collection Process - Foreclosures

Our panel will feature three of our own professionals -
